Simply put, there are several benefits to becoming a customer-centric company. The biggest of these comes in the form of increased profitability – customer-centric brands are 60 percent more profitable than brands that don't focus on their customers. Much of this happens due to more referrals and repeat sales. After all, customers don't mind staying loyal to companies that treat them well, and they'll even refer their products and services to friends and family on social media and...
